Introduction In this lab we will investigate the process of electromagnetic induction. The idea of induction is one of the most important in physics.

Many students improperly assume that electromagnetic induction may take place in the presence of static magnetic fields. This is not true. This is not true. The simple experimental setup described in the â€œAnswerâ€• section for this question is sufficient to dispel that myth, and to illuminate studentsâ€™ understanding of this principle.

Chapter 30 Worksheet 4 Generator 6. A water powered generator, shown below, to convert mechanical energy into electrical energy. A rotating wheel receives falling water forcing a wire loop ( $N=500$ ), located within a constant magnetic field  $B=0.01$  T (as shown), to rotate counter-clockwise at a rate of 150 rpm.

Worksheet: Electromagnetic Induction (revised 1/11/11) NAME_____ Changing magnetic flux through any closed loop creates an induced emf in that loop. The magnetic flux can change either because the magnetic field changes, the area of the loop changes, or because the ...

Induction in an Aluminum Can M m M m A: [Students] formulate and revise scientific explanations and models us-ing logic and evidence. B: (minor emphasis - Motion & Forces) Electricity and magnetism are two aspects of a single electromagnetic force. Moving electric charges produce magnetic forces, and moving magnets produce electric forces.
